St Lucia Golf Links

The City of Brisbane's St Lucia Golf Links were home to Indooroopilly Golf Club for the first sixty years of its existence. Formed in mid-1925, the club's first nine holes were finished within a year and the full eighteen hole layout was in play by the end of 1926. The initial St Lucia course was designed by Scottish-born Daniel Gordon "Dan" Soutar, who emigrated to Australia in 1903. As a golf professional at Royal Sydney, Manly and Moore Park Golf Clubs, and as a foundation member of the Australian PGA, Dan Soutar had a profound influence on early Australian golf—as an instructor, club-maker and course designer.

During the much reported 1926 visit to Australia by Dr Alistair Mackenzie, during which his primary responsibility was to re-design Royal Melbourne Golf Club's much celebrated West Course, the renowned British golf course architect also made a number of local and interstate side-trips; one of which was to Brisbane. The primary aim of Mackenzie's northern excursion was to suggest improvements to the recently inaugurated Carnegie Clark-designed layout of Royal Queensland Golf Club's Eagle Farm links. While he was in Brisbane, Indooroopilly Golf Club consequently engaged Mackenzie to recommend enhancements to its recently completed course at St Lucia.

Unlike other "golden-era" courses, which have been lengthened and altered to accommodate equipment advances, St Lucia Golf Links have changed little in the intervening years. This offers a rare opportunity to play an unadulterated classic layout with equipment from the time of its beginnings.

Established in 1896, The Brisbane Golf Club is a premier golfing destination thanks to the vision of its founding members. With great foresight, these pioneers of Australian golf built an exceptional golf course together with traditions and culture that have created the unique combination of challenging golf with unparalleled fellowship among members. 120 years later, members and guests enjoy the benefits of their enthusiasm and energy every day.

The Club's heritage-listed Clubhouse stands proud and its members, most importantly, adore their 18-hole championship golf course which is ranked in the Top 100 golf courses in Australia according to Golf Australia Magazine and Golf Digest Australia Magazine. The Brisbane Golf Club is also the only golf course in Australia to have Champion greens, a putting surface installed on over 700 golf courses in the United States. Royal Queensland Golf Club

Royal Queensland Golf Club is the premier golf club in Queensland and one of the finest in Australia. Its superb golf links have long been rated number one in Queensland and the club has a proud reputation of providing members and guests with outstanding levels of service.

The acclaimed Michael Clayton—designed golf course, expansive practice facilities and fine food and beverage offerings provide members and guests with an ideal environment in which to experience the great game of golf and the club's renowned camaraderie.

Royal Queensland Golf Club was established in 1920 and was granted its Royal Charter in 1921 by King George V, with the King's official letter of notification signed by Winston Churchill. Dr Alister MacKenzie was persuaded to visit Brisbane in 1926, and contributed his renowned design wisdom to a number of holes of the original Carnegie Clark—designed layout. He said, "Royal Queensland already compares favourably with some of the British Championship courses. It should have a very great future, and will be an excellent test of golf."
