THE AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP.

BRILLIANT PLAY BY MR. O'BRIEN.

The qualifying round for the amateur championship of the State was played over the Royal Sydney Club's links at Rose Bay on Saturday. There was a large attendance, including a number of ladies.

Mr. O. H. O'Brien, a young Marrickville player, who last season made his mark in the local club, and whose play this year has phenomenally improved, heads the list of the players qualifying for the play-off for the championship. He did the two rounds in 168, 84 for the morning, and 82 for the afternoon. His performance may be regarded as an exceptionally fine one, and his position as a candidate for Australian championship honors in October next is regarded as most promising. Bogeys for the course is fixed at 82, whilst Carnegie Clarke holds the professional record with a card of 73. Mr. T. Cheadle, also a Marrickville player, returned 172-83 and 89—and Mr. H. Macneil did 87 and 84, a total of 171, coming second in the list of competitors who qualified, and who have to play off, two rounds, on Wednesday.

The following eight qualified:—

N.S.W. AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP.

WON BY O. H. O'BRIEN.

CHEADLE ESTABLISHES AMATEUR RECORD.

MAGNIFICENT GOLF.

The delightful weather which favoured the early stages of the N.S.W. amateur golf championship continued on Saturday, when the final between Messrs. T. S. Cheadle and O. H. O'Brien was played. The result was a win for Mr. O'Brien, who defeated his opponent five up and three to play. Despite the many counter-attractions there was a fair gallery, and frequently the good play of the competitors was applauded. The players were out and finished early. Mr. Cheadle started badly by finding the bunker on the way to the first hole, he taking six to Mr. O'Brien's four, and this initiated a chapter of mishaps, from which it was impossible for him to recover in view of the consistently good golf played by his opponent. Both men made mistakes at the second hole. Mr. Cheadle had a chance of "squaring," but a topped ball spoiled it. Mr. O'Brien had got into the bunker to the right, and both holed out in five. The latter, with a capital drive was on the third green, and with a long put secured the hole in two, his opponent taking four. Mr. O'Brien here made mistakes, and gave the ex-South Australian champion a chance to recover, which was, however, not accepted. The latter missed badly to win the fourth in four, and also the fifth in three, likewise to halve the next in four, and the eighth in four. In the recounting of the errors of the opening nine holes of the championship the story of the two rounds is almost told. The outstanding feature was Mr. O'Brien's putting. He went out in 38; his opponent in 44. There were few mistakes in the home journey. Mr. O'Brien made one at the eleventh hole, though he managed to secure a half. At the sixteenth Mr. Cheadle got into the ditch, but, making a good recovery, he accomplished a halve. Going for the next he showed some capital golf, getting in a good drive, and an equally successful approach, which enabled him to win the hole in four to his opponent's five. Going to the eighteenth hole Mr. Cheadle pulled into the sand just as Mr.

O'Brien had done on the previous afternoon with Dr. Pope, but Mr. Cheadle lost the hole, and Mr. O'Brien had a lead of four up, the only holes won by Mr. Cheadle being the fifteenth and the seventeenth. The home journey occupied 40 for each, Mr. O'Brien having 78 for the round, which equalled the amateur record, and Mr. Cheadle 84.

The afternoon round was responsible for the finest golf ever seen in a championship in New South Wales. The amateur record stood at 78, and was held by Mr. Simpson, but as play proceeded it was soon evident that unless something untoward happened new figures would be established by one, if not by both, finalists. With the exception of small blemishes in Mr. Cheadle's play at the commencement of the second round his golf was almost perfect. Mr. O'Brien, maintaining his form, held on to those holes he gained in going out in the morning—in fact he played the game of his life. He secured the first and the second in fours against fives, but at the following seven holes the ex-South Australian champion, reaching a standard of play never before seen here in an amateur event, won two holes and lost one, the remaining four being halved. Turning for home Mr. O'Brien was five up. The journey out had occupied him 37 and his opponent 38. The latter now struck the very top of his form, and he was playing with that beautiful easiness which had characterised his game against Mr. Simpson. Both players were frequently cheered. That Mr. Cheadle was able to win but one hole—O'Brien took six for the thirteenth to Cheadle's four—in the next five is proof of the excellence of the golf played by Mr. O'Brien. Starting for the fifteenth the latter was four to the good, and with four to play there was still a chance for the South Australian. The visitor was, however, short with his first, and Mr. O'Brien won the hole, and with it the match, 5 up and 3, and the New South Wales Amateur Championship. The winner was warmly congratulated and cheered.

Both were playing such hot golf that the existing amateur record had commenced to totter, and now all interest centred in the building of new figures. To this point each had taken 61, so that they had to do the remaining three holes in 16 to beat record—the bogey is 15. For the sixteenth O'Brien took six—he got into the ditch—to Cheadle's five; the seventeenth was halved in four. Thus a second contest was being fought out as to who would claim the record. A bad second by Mr. O'Brien gave his opponent an opportunity which was not neglected, and Mr. Cheadle, holing out in four, reduced, amidst cheers, the amateur record from 78 to 74—a substantial reduction. Mr. O'Brien also improved upon the record, his round being 76. Thus the two youthful competitors—the new champion is about 21, the runner-up and record-holder 20—brought the Amateur Championship to an end for this year, and both came in for a large number of congratulations. It may be mentioned that the professional record stands at 70, and is held by Clarke.

The cards were:—

INTER-CLUB COMPETITION.

The competition is now over, and the winning club is Hunter's Hill, who up to Saturday was square with Killara. The latter club received its first defeat at the hands of Hunter's Hill, and this gave the premiership to the latter club.

The interclub premiership was inaugurated in 1901, when there were two separate competitions, and Hunter's Hill won. From 1902 to 1905 it was one competition of 16 players in each club, the winning teams being:-1902, Marrickville; 1903, Concord; 1904, Hunter's Hill; and 1905, Killara. In 1906 there were again two competitions, and Hunter's Hill, numerically the smallest club, won the A grade, and Killara the B grade. The result of Saturday's meeting between Hunter's Hill and Killara came rather as a surprise, for the latter had the greater number of supporters. It may be mentioned that the two clubs have met in the last match each season, and that Hunter's Hill has always won.
